TELLS OF LAST DAY IN JERUSALEM

Rev. F. K. Dougherty Continues Story of Christ's Final Days.

Incidents that the scriptures connect with the movements of Christ on the Tuesday preceding His crucifixion, were touched upon last night by Rev. Frank K. Dougherty, pastor of Grace M. E. church, in his sermon on the subject, "A Day of Judgment."

"Jesus spent Monday night at Bethany," Dr. Dougherty said, "Tuesday He came to the city of Jerusalem. This was the last day of public teaching and the people were no more to hear from that Voice which had so long been speaking to them from the hill sides and the lake shores, as well as in the synagogues and temple, such gracious words as never man spoke before or after."

Enemies On All Sides. "His enemies assailed Him in greater numbers than ever before. They only induced Him to set forth before all the people, by new parables and in a more awful light, the dreadful doom which they would bring on themselves, on the temple and the holy city, by rejecting their own Messiah."

"The day wore on, and all the while the adversaries of Jesus grew more exasperating in their attacks and more cunning and malignant in their hypocrisy, until at last He pronounced the most fearful woes upon the blind and bigoted leaders of the people on their presence and called them by their chosen name, and then He left them. The priests and scribes would now see to it that the dreaded voice of their Redeemer shall not be heard in the courts of the temple or in the streets of the city any more. That very night the great council would meet in secret session at the palace of the high priest and the betrayer would be there to bargain for the reward of iniquity and to deliver Jesus unto their hands."

Utters Warnings. "On His way out to Bethany that night, Jesus paused before passing the ridge of Olivet, and sat down with His disciples over against the temple and looked back at Jerusalem. Nowhere on the face of the whole earth was it possible to find another scene of such commanding interest as that which lay before the eyes of Jesus when He turned to look upon Jerusalem that evening for the last time. It was the city from which was to go forth the law of a new life for the uplifting of the whole human race."

"There, in plain sight of Jerusalem, He poured forth, in the most solemn and touching words, prophecy and warning and instruction covering the coming desolation of Jerusalem, the dispersion of the Jewish people, the preaching of the gospel to all nations and His own final coming to judge the world in righteousness. He closed this, the most awful and sublime of all His discourses with the distinct and solemn declaration that after two days He should be betrayed and crucified. Then He resumed His walk to Bethany and rested for the night."

"Reserve, Leading and Surplus," will be the subject of a lecture by J. A. Smith, general agent of the Pennsylvania Mutual Life Insurance Co., to the students in the insurance course in the Columbian room this afternoon. The lecture is one of a series by local insurance men planned by Prof. Grosso.

The varsity debating team consisting of Messrs. Galvin, Voll, Lemmer, Mulcaire, Hurley, Dorwin and McDonald argued both sides of the question resolved that, "That the United States government should grant subsidies to private capital for the upbuilding of an American merchant marine," in assembly hall at St. Mary's last evening. Rev. William Bolger, director of the public speaking department, and Prof. Ernest Lenihan, assistant, coached the debaters and gave final instructions preparatory to the debates with St. Vincent's college and Drake university.

The Easter vacation will begin Friday afternoon and extend to Tuesday evening, April 25.

Tenebrae services will be held in Our Lady of the Sacred Heart chapel this evening, opening the solemn services of Holy week.

Manager Thomas Conway of the Day Students' Athletic association called for baseball candidates yesterday afternoon and an unusually large number of candidates reported. A practice game with two nines made up the afternoon's work.

NEWS-TIMES GETS MORE COMPLIMENTS ON HOUSING FIGHT

Through Mrs. Albion Fellows Bacon of Evansville, author of the Indiana housing law and secretary of the Indiana Housing association, comes the announcement of a housing institute of national importance to be held at Indianapolis on May 16. It will be participated in by the national and state housing associations. Lawrence Veiller, a man of national reputation in social improvement matters, will take a leading part in the institute.

The News-Times is in receipt of letters of congratulation from both Mrs. Bacon and Mr. Veiller upon the better housing campaign which it has undertaken.

"If there is any way in which we can be of service to you in your campaign in South Bend, do let us know. I am delighted that The News-Times is taking this up."

"I am very glad that you are taking up housing in South Bend. Such educational campaigns as that are the stronghold of housing reform and make public sentiment which enables us to keep our tenement law on the statute books and to win other housing measures that we need, as well as to get them enforced."

"Albion Fellows Bacon."

K. AND F. CLUB PROGRAM VARIED

Actor, Quartet and Handwriting Expert Entertain Members.

Members of the Knife and Fork club were offered a diversity of entertainment last night at the seventh monthly banquet held in the banquet room of the Oliver hotel. The program included everything from selections by the American Operatic quartet to dramatic readings by Richard Kean, English tragedian. Albert F. Osborn of New York, delivered an illustrated lecture on "Proof of Documents, or Handwriting in Courts of Law." The speaker was introduced by Toastmaster Dudley M. Shively as the American Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Osborn related various incidents in connection with the field of handwriting and cited details of a number of cases in which the identification of signatures as to their genuineness or falsity determined the outcome of millions of dollars of litigation.

Tells How It's Done. In the illustrated lecture, the speaker pointed out conclusively that with the latest instruments designed for that purpose, forgeries, erasures, tracings of signatures, copies of wills, deeds and the like, could be ferreted out. The specimens of handwriting are magnified many times so that, by comparison the slightest irregularity can be shown. Development in the field of typewritten specimens, which is a new field now being exploited, has come to such a stage, Mrs. Osborn said, that it is now possible to identify the manuscript of a typewritten word showing the kind of machine it was written on, and the year in which the machine on which the word was written was made.

Shows Tricks On Slides. By means of slides, Mr. Osborn told many stories of court cases in which he was involved, showing how it was possible to detect the most carefully drawn and cleverly prepared forgery. A careful analysis and comparison of signatures as made by an expert with latest instruments, the speaker said, established its genuineness or falsity.

The handwriting expert wound up by telling how a criminal in the east sought to put cancelled postage stamps into use. The means employed was to cut a part of one stamp away that was not marked and paste it onto the corresponding cancelled part of another stamp. The man was finally detected by means of the instruments.

Kean Shows Artistry. Richard Kean made a strong impression upon the members of the Knife and Fork club. He belongs to the old school of actors and is pre-eminently an artist. Some of his selections were: Kipling's "The Vampire" and "Gunga Din," "Richard the Third," Hamlet's soliloquy, Cardinal Wolsey's "Henry the Eighth," characters from Pickwick Papers, Shylock from "The Merchant of Venice," and a character from Trilby. Some of these readings were done in costume.

The American Operatic quartet rendered a number of selections which were well received.

A nominating committee to report in May and nominate officers of the club for the ensuing year was

New Machine Aids In Feeding Soldiers

BREAD CUTTING AND BUTTERING MACHINE.

Bread cutting and buttering machine at work.

So many soldiers passing to and from the battle front in France, stop at the "feeding stations" maintained by charitable organizations in the midway depots, that it was found almost impossible to cut and butter enough bread for the hungry soldiers. Accordingly some genius invented the machine pictured above, which cuts and butters 5,000 slices of bread per hour. The loaves of bread and the butter are put into separate hoppers and the machine does the rest.

URGES MEN TO DIG SPIRITUAL WELLS

Rev. J. L. Gardiner Bases Sermon on Jacob's Well and Christ's Visit There.

Passion week services were continued last night at St. Paul's M. E. church when Dr. James L. Gardiner spoke on the subject, "Jesus Christ at Jacob's Well," to a large audience.

He spoke of the historical well dug by Jacob which was used centuries after he died.

"Little did Jacob think," said Dr. Gardiner, "that centuries and centuries after he was dead and gone that the tired Son of God would drink from the well which he, Jacob, had dug. Jacob dug deeper than he knew. He dug a well not simply for his own generation but for the generations and generations that followed him."

"This leads me to ask, What is the business of life? I answer, is it not to dig a well—a well in somebody's heart? Is it not to dig a well that shall bring some comfort to somebody after we have left this world? 'What an opportunity we all have—to dig a well. What a chance we have in this world to do something that shall enshrine ourselves in the hearts of those who shall come after us. God grant that you and I shall so work in the Master's name that we shall dig a well in somebody's heart, who shall stand by our grave and say, 'He loved us and labored for us.'"

Preceding the sermon motion pictures were shown of "The Women of Samaria and Jesus at Jacob's Well" and of "Scenes in Palestine."

Dr. Gardiner will speak tonight on "The Greatest Question of Exchange" and motion pictures will be presented of "What Shall It Profit a Man," and of "The Crusader and the Holy Sepulcher."
